1. Title: MGVC- Health Awareness Programme

- Blood Donation Camp

2. Objectives:

1. To engage and empower students and communities to choose health behaviors and make changes that reduces risk developing diseases and morbidities.
2. To empower the health status of students, families, communities, states and Nation.
3. To enhance the quality of life for all young generation through health education.
4. To enable the students to increase control over their own health.
5. To reduce the costs that individuals, families, the state and Nation will spend on medical treatment through health education.
6. To find ways to manage stress level, balancing commitments positive thinking

3. The context:

The young generation with their educational attainment live healthier and longer lives compared with their less educated people. These disparities are large and widening. The significance of the global health risk factors has led to a major emphasis in public health policy on education interventions. This role for education has traditionally focused on providing information and skills to help the people make choices and changes that will promote individual and society health and well- being. The main aim of health education is to reduce morbidity and mortality through changing the behaviors and beliefs of individuals, to faster the appropriate use of health services and to create a general awareness of health issues.

4. The Practice:

The role of education has traditionally focused on providing information and skills to help people make choices and changes that will promote individual and social health and well- being. The three main aims of health education are- Under the umbrella of "MGVC- Health Awareness Progemmes" following activities are undertaken.
